

Boston University New Testament Professor

When Whit recombined his recent blast of new ideas with his long-held conviction that his purpose was to reveal the truth about God and his kingdom, he found himself in a position of great responsibility. He was not only a professor, but a leader, and he knew that his actions would have a lasting impact on the world. He was not just a man of letters, but a man of faith, and he knew that his words would be heard by many. He was not just a man of the cloth, but a man of the world, and he knew that his actions would be seen by all. He was not just a man of the past, but a man of the future, and he knew that his words would be remembered for generations to come.
